In Registration Per 1,000 Square Miles of Its Surface.

The Jersey Bulletin places Vermont at the top of the list as having the largest showing and for being the leading Jersey state from data compiled by the merit and extension department of the American Jersey Cattle club. The following is quoted from the story relative to the matter:

because the states differ so much in size. In this connection, the state considered to be the leading Jersey state should be the state registering the most animals per 1,000 spuare miles of its surface. One would be state registering the most animals per 1,000 spuare miles of its surface. its surface. One would usually think schoolhouse, on that that state would be a state whose tillable area is not broken by mountains, lakes, forests or deserts, whose area is almost entirely farm lands.
